WHAT VEGETABLES ARE BEST SUITED TO MAINE?

"What varieties are best to plant?" is the question which is being asked by many people who are planning their gardens now," says Richard M. Riley, assistant Professor of Horticulture at the University of Maine.

"Some varieties of good quality which have proved themselves adapted to Maine conditions," says Professor Riley, "include: beans, Giant Stringless, Tendergreen, and Lowes' Champion of the dwarf green type and Pencil Pod Black Wax and Surecrop of the wax type.

Two of the best pole beans are Kentucky Wonder and Scotia. For shell beans Drawl and Pole Horticultural are the Standard ones.

Beets: Crosby Egyptian or Early Wonder are good early ones while Detroit Dark Red is a fine late maturing variety and Long Season is adapted to winter storage.

Golden Acre is the best early variety of cabbage while Danby Ballhead is superior as a late type for storage.

Tenderheart is a fine new variety of carrot and Hutchinson or Scarlet Nantes are good. For cauliflower Dwarf Erfurt or Snowball, especially Stokes Supersnowball, have given good results. This crop should be grown more in our gardens as our cool climate is adapted to its culture.

"For Swiss Chard, Lucullus is a good variety. Some strain of Golden Bantam is the very first quality for sweet corn but will not be so early as Golden Sunshine which is only of fair quality.

"For general planting as a slicing cucumber Early Fortune is fine while White Spine may be used. National Pickling is about the best pickling variety. Grand Rapids is a curly leaf lettuce easy to grow in the garden, while some home gardeners may want to try the heading varieties such as New York No. 12 of the crisp head type or White Boston of the butterhead type. Model Hollow Crown is a standard variety of parsnip while Guernsey is very similar. World's Record, Gradus, and Thomas Laxton are good early varieties of wrinkled peas. Senator is a good mid season variety, semi-vining.

Alderman is a good late pea that has given good results in recent years and is considered superior to telephone. Some favor Dwarf Telephone.

"Golden Neckless is a fine variety of rutabaga. It is of medium size with yellow skin and flesh. Probably Summer Straightneck or Summer Crookneck are the best of the summer squashes. Delicious or Golden Delicatus are fine for fall and early winter while the various Hubbards are best for mid-winter to spring. Long Standing Bloomsdale is a good spring variety of spinach. Plant King of Denmark or New Zealand (not a true spinach) in the summer and use Virginia Savoy for fall.

"There are many varieties of tomatoes. Penn State Earliana and Red River are good strains of Earliana. Bonney Best and Early Esther are early and of good type and really will give the most satisfaction."

The 35th season of the Lakewood Players will open on Saturday night, June 1. Miss Mary Rogers, daughter of Will Rogers and one of last season's favorites, will spend the season at Lakewood.

MARSHALL—LURVEY

A pretty wedding took place at the Congregational Parsonage at 10:30 Sunday morning when Miss Iola Lurvey became the wife of Harold Marshall. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. T. Wallace. The bride was dressed in blue velvet with accessories to match; the groom wore a blue suit. They were attended by Miss Kathryn Lowell of West Bethel, and the groom's brother, Richard Marshall. Mrs. Marshall is a native of Woodstock, the daughter of the late Fred T. Lurvey and Mrs. Elvira Lurvey, now of Bethel. She was educated in the schools of Greenwood and at Good Will High School, Hinkleley, and is now employed by the E. L. Tebbets Spool Co. of Locke Mills.

Mr. Marshall is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Marshall of Bethel. He was born in Upton and received his education in the schools of Bethel, "graduating from Gould Academy in 1928. Since then he has been employed by local concerns and as scaler by the Brown Company.

The couple are making their home at present with Mr. Marshall's parents.

MANY MAINE FARMERS CONTROL WIREWORMS

"Many Maine farmers are successfully controlling wireworms," according to John H. Hawkins of the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station. "Four methods," he explained, "are in general use: First, farmers plant potatoes and other susceptible crops in light loam soil which is not usually heavily infested by wireworms; second, they use crops resistant to wireworm attack, when the soil is infested by wireworms; third, the wireworms are worked out of infested soil by cultivation; and fourth, judicious crop rotations are used to prevent reinfestation of the soil.

"Fortunately on most Maine farms there are one or more areas of light loam soil particularly well adapted to potatoes and seldom heavily infested by wireworms," says Mr. Hawkins. "This favorable soil should be utilized to the fullest extent for potatoes and other crops susceptible to wireworm injury. Wireworms can be worked out of the soil, however, and at the same time injury be kept at a minimum by the use of cultivated crops resistant to wireworms. From one to four years are required to reduce the wireworm population of the soil so that potatoes can be safely grown. The time varies required varies with the intensity of the wireworms populations in the beginning. In general, peas, beans, and broadcast grain, clover and grass crops are resistant to wireworm attacks. Corn is somewhat more resistant than potatoes.

"Losses amounting to thousands of dollars annually are caused to the crops of Maine by wireworms in spite of the fact that many farmers are successfully controlling these pests. Often the losses caused are unsuspected until harvest time when they are revealed by reduced yields or inferior quality of the crop. Sometimes even at harvest time the true cause of the loss is unsuspected. Where wireworm infestation is suspected examination of the soil should be made as early in the spring as is practicable. By knowing in advance where infestation occurs, the farmer can put into effect practices for protecting his crops against loss and at the same time begin working the wireworms out of his soil."

The following Sixth grade pupils at the Grammar School have been awarded their seven-point pins by the State Department of Health: Barbara M. Lutton, Buddy Clough, Hope H. Bailey, Bradley W. Hall, Eva M. Deegan, Valerie Bean, Muriel Hall, Mary Jodrey and Francine Warren.

Fred Kilgore and L. E. Wight went to Grafton after wood Saturday.

Richard Clifford was a guest of Daniel Wight Friday night returning to Gorham Normal with Dan when he went back to Portland on Sunday.

Schools in town opened Monday after two weeks of vacation.

Mrs. Frances Vail has returned to her home in New Hampshire.

The Circle Supper at Mrs. Davis' was well attended Thursday night. Among those from away were Mr. and Mrs. P. O. Brinck, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. F. I. French and Miss Gwendolyn Godwin of Bethel; Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Saunders, Ernest Holt and Mrs. M. A. Holt of Hanover, also Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Warren and Mrs. Grace Hulbert.

L. E. Wight, J. E. Vail, P. M. Walker and W. W. Kilgore attended the 13 Class services at Portland, Sunday.

Don't forget the Annual Sugar Eat and Dance at Bear River Grange Hall, Friday night, April 26th.

Archie Hutchinson and son Curtis were in Lewiston Saturday.

Eugene Dorr and Mr. Stevens of Rumford were in town Friday. Clarence Bennett was in Lancaster, N. H., Monday.

Francis Mills of Quincy, Mass., is at home for a week's vacation. Claude and Willie Mills were the guests of their mother, Mrs. Emma Mills, who is very ill at this time.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hall, with Mr. and Mrs. Norman Hall of Bethel, were in Colebrook, N. H., to attend the funeral of their brother who passed away Saturday.

Mrs. Ella Hutchinson was the week end guest of her sister, Mrs. Will Mason.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold King spent the week end in Portland.

FIFTY-THIRD ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Richardson of Hanover celebrated their 53d wedding anniversary Sunday, April 14th, with all their children and grandchildren present except three who were unable to attend. Dinner was served at noon at Union Hall.

THE POOR EDITOR

Consider the editor! A child is born unto the wife of a merchant in the town. The Physician getteth 10 plunks. The editor writeth a stick and a half and telleth the multitude that the child tippeth the beam at nine pounds. Yea, he lieth even as a centurian. And the proud father giveth him a Cremo.

Behold, the young one groweth up and graduateth. And the editor putteth into his paper a swell notice. Yea, a peach of a notice. He telleth of the wisdom of the young woman and of her exceeding comeliness. Like unto the roses of Sharon is she and her gown is played up to beat the band. And the dress-maker getteth two score and four iron men. And the editor gets a note of thanks from the sweet girl graduate.

And the daughter goeth on a journey. And the editor throweth himself on the story of the farewell party. It runneth a column solid. And the fair one remembereth him from afar with a picture postal card that costeth six for a jitney.

Behold she returneth, and the youth of the town fall down and worship. She picketh one and lo, she picketh a lemon. But the editor calleth him one of our promising young men and getteth away with it. And they send unto the editor a bid to the wedding, and behold the bids are fashioned in a far city.

Flowery and long is the wedding notice which the editor printeth. The minister getteth 10 bones. The groom standeth the editor off for a 12-months subscription.

All flesh is grass and in time the wife is gathered unto the soil. The minister getteth his bit. The editor printeth a death notice, two columns of obituary, three lodge notices, a couple of poetry and a card of thanks. And he forgetteth to read proof on the head and the darned thing cometh out, "Gone to Her Last Roasting Place."

And all that are akin to the deceased jumpeth on the editor with exceeding great jumps. And they pulleth out their ads and cancelleth their subs, and they swing the hammer even unto the third and fourth generations. —Pathfinder.

The Girl Scouts held their meeting Friday, April 12, with an attendance of 26. We formed the horseshoe, sang America, repeated the Scout Promise, had inspection, and sang the Star Spangled Banner. We marched from the Patrol corners to the horseshoe. We then practised our march and drills.

Next Friday, April 19, will be a program given by the Girl Scouts for their mothers. — Girl Scout Scribe, Virginia Smith.

The Ways and Means Club met at the home of Mrs. Grace Philbrook Wednesday evening.

One Grateful Mother's Tribute

"I feel that it was very possibly instrumental in saving the life of my third oldest boy one night when he was one year old." Mrs. A. G. Weldon, Medford (Mass.).

Rowe Hill, Greenwood

Christian Endeavor meeting was with the President, Mrs. Stella Ring, last Tuesday evening with an attendance of 14. There was also a planning meeting Friday evening at the same place. This Tuesday's meeting is at Newton Bryant's and April 23 will be at E. L. Dunham's with special Easter exercises.

Through the kindness of Locke Mills people, sixteen people from Rowe Hill were able to attend Sunday School there last Sunday, which privilege was appreciated by those who would not have been able to attend otherwise. Everyone enjoyed the service and feel that each one should make a special effort to attend the next two services. Let's all go in a body next Sunday and show them what Greenwood can do when called upon to help out. One young man is to be here next Sunday regardless of weather conditions. Let's meet such spirit half way.

Wilmer and Winifred Bryant, Edgar and Mrs. Elton Dunham were in South Paris last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Durward Lang were in South Paris and Norway Saturday.

Norma Ring has finished work at Lewis Cole's, Locke Mills, and is at home.

Winifred Bryant visited Mrs. Ethel Martin, Greenwood Center, Monday.

Vera Dunham is working for her sister, Mrs. Lester Cole, Greenwood Center.

Ray Hanscom has finished in the woods and is making syrup.

Ernest Brooks is on the road selling shoes.

Snow goes very slowly. Roads in very bad condition. All kinds of weather: snow the 12th, rain the 13th and 14th, fair Monday until night, then rain again Monday night and Tuesday, which is needed to settle the roads and take the snow off.

Herbert Libby is able to sit up but the leg which was badly wrenched and the bone cracked about six weeks ago, is still in splints.

Charles Libby and Glenwood Libby, who are cutting wood in Albany, expect to cut pulp there later.

MILTON

E. S. Swan has pneumonia here at E. L. Buck's, where he has been boarding.

Mrs. J. H. Ackley was at her home here Sunday.

Alf Coffin and family have moved into the upstairs rent in the Ed Thompson place below Pinhook.

Granger Chase and wife have returned to their home at Abbott's Mills after spending the winter with their daughter in Portland.

Harry Billings is driving the milk truck for his brother, Ernest, who has been sick.

Cuvier Jackson is visiting his mother a few days.

Howard Thornton lost a horse last week.

Jane Russell spent the week end with her aunt, Ella Bowker.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Clifford and son were at her grandmother's Mrs. Addie Lapham's, Sunday.

UPTON

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Douglass are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fuller are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a son.

Mrs. Douglass and Mrs. Fuller are in the Rumford Community Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Williams of Dixfield were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Whitney.

Rev. W. L. Halladay of Errol, N. H., supplied the pulpit here last Sunday. Since Rev. R. S. Irons' resignation, which took effect April 1st, we have been unable to get a permanent man for this church. Rev. Halladay will preach here on every other Sunday.

The C. E. Society will have charge of the Sunrise Service on Easter morning at 6 o'clock. This will be followed by a breakfast at the Library Building.

BETHEL NEEDS

More and Better Sidewalks—Winter
and summer,
Rural Fire Protection,
Night Watchman—All the Year,
Enforced Traffic Rules,
Australian Ballot System for Town
Meetings.

Now that our friends, the Legislators, have departed to where they came, let's scan a few of the results of their deliberations.
This week, we will run over the legislation relating to fishing and hunting, two subjects that are of interest to nearly all of us.

Legislation for more extensive treatment later on the increase in hunting and fishing licenses, this year would say that the next most important change in the law is that which declares a three-day open season on moose next September 23, 24, and 25 in Knox, Lincoln and Waldo counties.

An act of straight reporting,
this law is viewed with mixed feelings among the hunters of the State. Some prefer to use the open season as a menace to the propagation of our largest game animal.
Those who live in the counties
named say that it will only result in a needed thinning out of an immense herd that is ruining the property and disturbing the peace of mind
of the inhabitants.

This will be the first open season on moose in the State since 1929 when around 80 of the majesty mammals went to the last round-up. It will cost non-residents $25.00 to hunt moose here
next fall while the rest of us fellows get by on our regular license of $1.00.

Another law of general interest
is that which increases the bounty on wild cats and their various near relatives from $10.00 to $15.00.
This, it is hoped, will answer the prayers of hunters and trappers
who claim that chasing the wild panther for a ten dollar note is not all that it is cracked up to be.

And then there is the law relating to bears. After this, any brute that roams within the boundaries of about 50 townships, plantations, or unincorporated places where they are adjudged to be a nuisance
will do so with the imminent risk of losing their pelt for which a bounty of $20.00 will be payable.

Money was also appropriated to survey the following waters:
Moosehead Lake at Indian Pond;
Haines Bay Pond; Lake Wascop-
scap; Little Pond; Hangeley Lake;
Foster Lake; Shiba Pond; Pleasant
Pond; Androscoggin County; Hewson Lake; Bowden's Lake;
North Pond. In addition, money was allocated for repainting the screen on Sheepscot Lake.

For the past few years foreign commentators have continually proposed this question: "WILL there be war in Europe?"

Now another question has taken its place: "WHEN will there be war in Europe?" Dispassionate observers incline to the view that the dove of peace is more bedraggled
now than at any time since 1913,
that armed conflict between some or all of the great powers is inevitable.

Recent events have certainly not been reassuring. All Europe is now an armed camp—every country is building up its forces, increasing armaments, holding arduous aerial maneuvers. France recently announced that 60,000 of her soldiers, who would normally have been released from the colors, will be held on for an extra three-months period in order to man the great concrete and steel fortresses which she has built along the German border.

Germany, of course, offers the main reason for European alarm—Hitler's announcement that he would no longer abide by the Versailles treaty was a bombshell.
But Germany isn't the only offender. Lithuania, Poland, Italy and France are all on the nervous side.
They are suspicious of each other, worried, afraid of invasion.
Their fears may be largely groundless—but psychology plays an important role in fomenting wars.

Your neighbor may be as peaceable as they come—but if you think he's waiting his chance to slit your throat, you're likely to see a threat
in everything he says or does.

Against the forces of Mars, the forces of peace seem somewhat inadequate. Mainstay of peace is England and ace English roving diplomat is suave Anthony Eden, not yet 40. Captain Eden recently spent his time going in whirlwind fashion from one European capital to another, seeking agreements to outlaw war.

England's first move was to ask Hitler to back up his many statements that Germany wanted peace
by doing four things. Number one was to return to the League of Nations. Number two was to join with England, France and Italy in guaranteeing the maintenance of Austrian independence. Number three was German adherence to the proposed Eastern Locarno Pact, under which all nations east
of the Rhine—Germany, Russia,
Poland, Czechoslovakia, Lithuania,
Latvia and Estonia—would agree to respect each other's boundaries.

Number four was German adherence to still another pact, in which it would join England, France, Italy and Belgium in agreeing to reject "unprovoked air aggression"
committed by any power.

England was not so naive as to believe that Germany would agree to all without something in return.
England's offer to Germany was that the powers would release her from the Versailles pact and permit her to return on a basis of equality with other nations.

Hitler's answer: That Germany would aim as much as she pleased whether the other powers liked it or not.

Next act in the grim drama will be underway by the time this article is read. At Stresa, Italy, all the great powers, excepting Germany, will meet and deliberate policy toward the Nazi government.

Chairman of the meeting will be fire-eater Mussolini, who distrusts
Germany—and perhaps distrusts
France even more. Most commentators think the Stresa conference is doomed to failure—realistically speaking, its purpose is to achieve an agreement among nations whose ambitions, plans and hopes are, for the most part, diametrically opposed.

It is an interesting fact that the balance of power in determining peace or war may eventually lie with Russia. She has one of the world's foremost military machines, and no country in the world would like to go to grips with her. In addition, she connects the East and the West, and can stand as a barrier to the ambitions of Japan as well as to those of Germany. Russian attitude at present seems to be a sincere desire for peace—not because her government is basically pacific, but because she cannot spare the energy and money that a war would require and at the same time pursue her vast internal development program.

So far, the United States has taken no hand in the European muddle. Roosevelt foreign policy is one of isolation and strict neutrality. However, in any proceedings designed to overhaul the Versailles pact, center of the present discord, we are almost bound to take a hand, as we were one of the signers and our war President,
Wilson, helped write it.

The tumult and the shouting have died at last, so far as the work relief bill is concerned. After more than two months of acrimonious debate it has passed both houses. Save for relatively minor provisions, it passed in the form
the President asked.

The President will have the say in spending the money, with the exception of highway funds which are to be specifically allocated. He will have the authority to fix wage scales. According to the relief administration, it will be possible to create 3,500,000 jobs with the money.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas: The Divine Master has again entered our order and removed by death our beloved brother, Eli W. Stearns, therefore be it,

Resolved: That in the death of our beloved brother, a valued member and friend of Bear River Grange has left us and another link in the chain that binds us to our fraternal order is broken.

Resolved: That we, as members,
deeply mourn the loss of our worthy brother, yet we mourn not without hope; by his character he left the assurance that he has joined the great throng above
where pain and sorrow never enter.

Resolved: That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family in their affliction.

Resolved: That our Charter be draped in mourning for thirty days; that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased, also one sent to the Oxford County Citizen for publication; and that they be spread upon the records of our Grange.

NEWS of the WEEK

© News-Week, Inc.

ARMING 100,000 WARRIORS

Addis Ababa, Abyssinia—Although Helle Salassie, "King of Kings," declares there is no state of war between his mountain kingdom and Italy, the arrival of a heavy train-load of 400 machine guns, 20,000 rifles, 6,000,000 cartridges, largely made in Belgium and Czechoslavakia, will go far toward arming the 100,000 dusky warriors he has massed along the borders of Italian Somaliland. In the meantime, the League of Nations is pondering
over his charges of Italian aggression.

THREE POWERS AGREE

Stresa, Italy—On a beautiful isle
in Lake Maggiore, representatives of Great Britain, France and Italy agreed to unite in resisting any future treaty violations. To this extent, the tension in Central Europe is somewhat lessened, although France continues her protests before the League of Nations against Hitler's defiance of the Treaty of Versailles, and demands guarantees against further invasion of French treaty rights.

BRIDGE MARATHON

New York—For three weeks in a stuffy local club room America's two leading bridge families, Mr.
and Mrs. P. Hal Sims, Mr. and Mrs.
Ely Culbertson, battled over 150 rubbers in a roped off enclosure to keep kibitzers at their distance.
After 870 hands, the Culbertsons
wone by 16,130 points, taking 82
rubbers to the Sims' 68. Tensed nerves made the quartette touchier than usual; Sims demanded that Culbertson stick to English in his comments; Culbertson cautioned
Sims to keep his feet on his own side of the table; Mrs. Sims swore robustly on occasion.

CUBAN FIRING SQUAD

Havana—Convicted of placing a bomb under a custom's officials house Jaime Greinstein, Cuban
born of German-Jewish parents,
faced a firing squad at the Moncada Barracks, thus paying a penalty that has been rare in Cuba even under the harsh dictatorship of Machado. The resumption of Court martial proceedings against civilians is accepted by many observers as the present government's answer to the rioting of a month ago.

IN COLLEGE—AND OUT

Chicago—Charles R. Walgreen,
wealthy drug store chain proprietor, offered to send his pretty Seattle niece through college if she would come to Chicago. Last week
Mr. Walgreen was sorry, withdrew Miss Lucille Norton from her classes at the University of Chicago. Mining no words with Dr.
Robert M. Hutchins, young president of the University, the drug store man declared that his niece was subject to "communistic influences"; he was enraged that she was learning such things as "advocating violence in overthrowing
the government of our country."
Dr. Hutchins' reply pleaded for "freedom of inquiry, freedom of speech, freedom of teaching." And Miss Norton is studying music and playing tennis.

THE CIRCUS ARRIVES

New York—Brand new from bass drums to elephant trappings, the Ringling Brothers—Barnum &
Bailey Circus officially opened the Spring and pink lemonade season here this week. This year two men are shot out of the big gun; a troupe of bears ride unicycles,
which is no easy trick for a man,
and an Egyptian with an asbestos tongue flicks a red-hot poker like a lolly-pop. For three solid hours, kids and their elders are held spellbound by the never ageing pageantry of the "Greatest Show on Earth."

RADIO AWARDS

New York—The Woman's National Radio Committee gave radio
nobels a shock at first luncheon tendered the leaders of the industry by endorsing only four programs worthy of award, out of an estimated 50,000 weekly programs
sent out over 600-odd stations.
General Motors concert and Columbia's non-commercial "Concert Hall," received scrolls as the best programs in their respective fields.
One notable program was rejected
because of "Lapel-eking announcement;" another because it was big artist—"Little music." "Long Tresome announcements" killed another leading program. In general the ladies scolded the whole radio field for underestimating the public's intelligence. "Those were marvelous speeches," gallantly commented Col. Richard Patterson, vice-president of National Broadcasting Company. "A lot of very un-fair things were said about radio," lamented President Patey, of the Columbia System.

REMAINING 4TH LIBERTIES CALLED

Washington—Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has called as of next October 15th, $1,250,000, 000 of the Fourth Liberty Loan bonds, the last outstanding of this issue. With the completion of this move, more than six billion dollars
of war financing has been retired or refunded, reducing the carrying charges to the Government to slightly under 3% from a level heretofore well in excess of 4%. The Treasury estimates that this gigantic refunding
operation has saved Uncle Sam $100,000,000 in interest charges;
also declares that "the financial log-jam has been broken, and there is no longer any reason why capital should not flow normally into the arteries of business."

CHEAP HOSPITALIZATION

New York—Ever since the announcement of its plans, the Associated Hospital Service has been swamped with inquiries about its new scheme of "hospitalization without red tape." The plan is like insurance; a group of ten or more agree to pay $10 each year or three cents a day. The fund thus created pays the hospital bill when required. Half of any group must be employed; all must be in good health, under 65 years and living within 50 miles of New York. Similar units are in operation in 30
other American cities; 4,000,000
participate in the plan in the British Isles. The association is non-profit making.

GRADE CROSSINGS TO GO

Washington—President Roosevelt needed only the stimulus of the horror sixteen miles north of here when 14 school children were killed in a grade crossing crash, to allocate $200,000,000 of work relief
money to the elimination of grade crossings. Other plans in other states to reduce mortality in school bus operation: California paints its school busses garish black and yellow; all traffic looks out for them.
New York just failed to act on a state measure to paint all school buses red, white and blue.

NO MONEY IN WAIT

form as put through the House.
Excess war profits are taxed 100%.
The President is empowered to fir-

SILVER CARTWHEELS

Gadsden, Ala.—When 3,200 workers of the Gulf States Steel Company's local plant began to get rid of 60,000 silver dollars they received in pay, local merchants thought a silver shower had struck town. An alert vice-president loosened the two tons of metal just to see who got the money after the steel worker got his pay. Silver dollars, because of their scarcity, are easy to trace, and this is where
most of them were found:
Food Stores received 35.5%
Department & Clothing Stores 8.5%
The Landlord's Share 6.0%
Burial Societies; Morticians 1.5%
Banks and Postal Savings 10.0%
The other 39.5% went into everything from Barbers and Beauty Shops at 0.7% to Gasoline and Oil
at 3.3% and Insurance at 4.5%.

VICTORY OVER DEATH

Station DSB

Last Friday morning, I gave over "the air" my broadcast on "Nail-Prints." Christ received the wounds that caused those scars, when he gave his life on Calvary. Death and burial logically followed. But those tragic hours soon slipped away; and Heaven recognized the great Conqueror of death. The mighty slab was rolled from the door of the cave; and, he arose! It was the grandest event in all history. How we should rejoice! And, now, happy Easter tide is here again. Pastors and Church-members—I think it is perfectly allowable for you to shout with joy, so that this old earth will tremble with the vibration of your song of victory, because Christ arose from that old tomb. That ugly "Roman Seal" could not prevent his resurrection. Glory be to God forever! Please listen "out there" for the few moments I am allowed to speak. Be serious and consider how often Death snatches away our loved ones. Our happiness is turned to sorrow. We frequently complain, "Nothing remains in life worth while." But others have their troubles. There is not a family in all the universe that escapes the misery caused by sickness and death. Perhaps the tears now dim your eyes as you recall the agony that filled your heart when that loved one slipped away from you.

There is rift in that dark cloud at Easter-time. The blessed sunlight of a powerful and glorious resurrection shines through the grief and despair, and hope takes root once more. Our sad lips part with a smile. There were but vague and shadowy ideas of immortality before Christ arose from the dead. But he speaks to us today and says—so sweetly and joyously to cheer our hearts—"Those who died trusting in me shall live again; and you who remain yet on earth as my followers shall, also, share in my glory; for I am the resurrection and the life." Could anything be more comforting? He reveals this great Truth to us in many ways!

As the Summer passes and the chill of Autumn touches our garden spots, we sorrow for our beautiful plants and flowers that leave us to pass into decay. All is barren and dreary where they were once so cheery and attractive. But their usefulness is not past for they have blessed our hearts. God has seen them, too, and rejoiced over them and will give them back to us again in the "morning" of Spring.

We should rejoice in the power of an endless life. The snow has been rather backward in leaving us this year. But nature is beginning to again illustrate its great law of revivification (renewal of life). The sap is rushing up into the buds; blades of green grass may be seen; and the carols of our little feathered friends are heard. All nature is awakening!

In conclusion, let me say that I sympathize with all who sorrow. But let us each take heart and rejoice; although we all have our trials and sorrows. The storms in the "Winter of Life" have beaten heavily upon us, but the "Spring-time of Jesus" glorious appearing is near when he will restore our loved ones to us.

Glory be to his blessed name.

Leaving gladiolus bulbs in a tight box with naphthalene flakes for about two weeks will kill thrips which are dangerous insect pests.

GOULD ACADEMY NOTES

Well over a hundred parents and friends attended the annual exhibition of the manual training department at Gould Academy held Friday afternoon in the new administration building. Classes were in session in all departments and parents and friends were invited to attend. The science department had a special exhibit of its physical apparatus and laboratory experimental work. C. P. Bailey, head of the department, was assisted in the laboratory demonstrations by the following: Demonstration of preparation of common compounds, Richard Williams of Mechanic Falls, Albert Judkins of Upton, Josephine Thurston, Margaret Hamlin, Frank Parsons, Florine Bean, Stanley Hamlin, Arthur Gilbert and Howard Thurston of Bethel, Phyllis Bennett of Gilead, and Willard Wight of Newry; physical demonstration in light, Henry Hastings of Bethel and Wilber Clay of Lincoln; electricity, Maynard Young of Minot, Marion King of Rangeley, Evelyn Hunt of Bethel and Lillian Judkins of Upton; mechanics, Persis Adams of Hartford, sound, Richard Young of Bethel; high frequency electricity and boiling points in high vacuums, Richard Marshall of Bethel.

The manual training exhibit was arranged by O. H. Anderson, head of the department, assisted by C. F. Fossett, instructor of freshmen. Work in wood turning was demonstrated by Walter Grover, Edwin Bennett and Robert King of Bethel.

Articles of furniture and mechanical drawing projects made by the following pupils were on display: Seniors: Edwin Bennett, Edwin Brown, Stanley Brown, Alonzo Chapman, Arthur Gilbert, Walter Grover, Stanley Hamlin, Rodney Howe, Robert King, Robert Kirk, Frederick MacMillan, Malcolm Mundi, Frank Parsons, Haakon Olson, Willard Wight; Juniors: Kenneth Brooks, Philip Chapman, Paul Daniels, George Gilbert, Christine Onofrio, Walter Snow, Norwood Waterhouse, Arthur Whitman, Maynard Young, Richard Young; Sophomores: Charles Anderson, Ivan Arno, Arthur Bennett, Shurwin Bennett, Victor Brooks, Mervin Buck, Clayton Coolidge, Shirley Gilbert, Earlon Kenniston, Wallace Morgan, Lawrence Perry, Gardiner Smith, Newton Stearns, Dale Thurston, Erland Wentzel, Robert Moore, Robert Whitman; Freshmen: George Adams, Donald Brown, Shirley Chase, Alton Cross, Arthur Haselton, Royden Keddy, Robert Kenniston, Mellen Kimball, John King, Frank Littlehale, Donald Luxton, Edward Robertson, Archer Waterhouse, and Robert Beck.

Track practice is being conducted daily under the direction of Coach Fossett with the following candidates reporting for the team: "Al" Chapman, Bill Wight, Arthur Gilbert, Howard Thurston, Bob Browne, Charles Smith, Frederic MacMillan, Clement Philbrook, Walter Snow, Dwight Siles, Dale Thurston, Robert Brine, Edward Holt, Lewis Porter, Donald Brown, Bryant Bean, Edward Robertson, Talbot Crane, Mellen Kimball, Captain Walter Grover, and Edwin Brown.

In the girls' volley ball games, played last Thursday afternoon, the sophomores, holding a five point handicap, trimmed the seniors 35-33; and the juniors overcame the freshmen ten point handicap to win 38-30. This Thursday at 3:30 the seniors will play the freshmen and the juniors will meet the sophomores in the second series of games in the girls' volleyball league.

Baseball candidates are working out daily under the direction of Coach Anderson. Although there are a fair-sized group of candidates, the material is none too promising this year.

Declamations for Friday, April 12, were given by the following: Walter Grover, Jane Waterhouse, Betty Raynes, Lillian Judkins, Russell Burris, Alice Tyler, Shurwin Bennett, Sally King, Helen Daniels, Robert Brown, Mildred Vail, Newton Stearns, Richard Young, Gardner Smith, Marian King, Alonzo Chapman, Robert King.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Theodore Gatlin decided to adopt a baby in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But all his love for their daughter could not shelter her childhood from the hatred of his wife, who had never wanted her. Their affairs ended in the divorce court but ten-year-old Penelope was given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin, except for two Sunday afternoons a month. On their first day together they set out joyfully to baseball game. A ball, hit into the teachers' struck Penelope on the nose and the neurotic Mrs. Gatlin removed her from the hospital to which her former husband had hurried her. Mrs. Gatlin spirited her child to Europe. Gatlin retired from business, willing Penelope all his money, and was about to begin search for his daughter when a motor accident ended his life.

CHAPTER II.—Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, rising young psychiatrist, was presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl whose terrible childhood had left her with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" was in part responsible. McNamara did not think she was a responsible criminal and obtained Burt's expert testimony in court. Even Lanny, the doctor's faithful office nurse, was won over to her cause despite Nance's hard-boiled exterior.

CHAPTER III.—Nance's criminal record outweighed Doctor Burt's explanation of her case and she was sent to San Quentin penitentiary for two years. Lanny visited her and Nance persuaded her to smuggle out a letter which she had written to her mother. The letter was found and she was confined to the prison walls.

CHAPTER IV.—Nance escaped, although shot by swimming out to a speed-boat manned by friends and went to Lanny's apartment. Lanny told Chief McNamara, who ordered her to bring Nance to his apartment and phoned for Doctor Burt.

CHAPTER V.—One of the men in the boat on which Nance escaped was of them ex-convicts, the other bootlegger—had been wounded and they went to Burt's office, where McNamara found them. The bootlegger he let go and he took the others to his home, ordering the injured one to care for Nance and his pal. From them he learned that Nance's real name was Penelope Gatlin. Detective Sergeant Flynn and Angellotti, seeking the reward offered for Nance's apprehension, went to Lanny's apartment search for Nance. Looking over San Quentin cell, McNamara found a blank check on a San Jose bank.

Outside of Chief McNamara's office door, Detective Sergeant Flynn and Angellotti looked at each other meaningly.

"He's up to his old tricks, Amadeo,"

"Always feeling sorry for the underdog, Pat. He makes me sick."

"I'll bet a month's salary he knows where the Belden girl is this minute."

"I'm not quitting such a hot scent, Pat."

"We'll just split that two hundred and fifty-dollar reward—and see how the chief likes it. That old Lanny girl warned us to step softly or she'd have us broke, didn't she? Well, where does she get her drag with the old man?"

A. Angellotti jumped to the natural conclusion of his kind. "She's got something on him, I suppose."

"Sure she has. She knows he knows where she's hid the body."

"We've got to see the Belden girl's photograph and a thumb prints and Bertillon measurements. They're in the upper office."

They went up to the identification bureau, called for the record of Nance Belden and studied it for a couple of minutes.

"I'd recognize that dame now if she was burned to ashes." Thus Angellotti.

Flynn drew his partner into a corner. "The girl was wounded. We know that from the guard that shot her and we're sure of it after looking at the blood in that speed-boat."

"If she'd bled that much all by herself she'd never have gotten ashore under her own power, Pat. I'm inclined to think one of the crew got hit, too."

"There's hope for the dagoes yet, my boy. You're right. It stands to reason some doctor fixed them up. Now, then, what doctor?"

"Dr. Stephen Burt," Angellotti decided.

"It stands to reason that if this Doctor Burt dressed their wounds last night he'll call on his patients every day until they're out of danger. If we catch him at his dirty work there ought to be a little something in this on the side, Amadeo."

An hour later they pulled up in front of Stephen's house, and behind a coupe parked at the curb. Flynn, circling around it, noticed a red cross on the radiator.

They circled the block and returned, to park at the lower edge of the block. At a quarter past eight they saw Stephen come out, bag in hand, enter his coupe, and drive away. So they followed him and came, in time, to Dan McNamara's house, into which they saw him enter, as they rolled slowly past.

"He had a latch key. He didn't ring the bell. An' no lights in the front o' the house," Angellotti cried excitedly. "Drive back, Pat, and I'll get the number."

"That house," Flynn informed him dramatically, "is the habitat of His Royal Highness, Daniel McNamara, Chief of Police of San Francisco. I always knew he was a fox, but I never suspected he was fool enough to hide an escaped convict in his own house. That situation is ticklish an' requires calm an' mature deliberation."

"Maybe you're right at that, Amadeo. Well, we'll stick round a while."

They stuck around half an hour before Doctor Burt came out, and drove away. "Drop off an' watch the house," Flynn suggested to his partner, "an' I'll follow his nbs. I'll be back later."

He trailed Stephen Burt to the latter's home and saw him pull up across the sidewalk, preparatory to opening the door of his garage. So Flynn rolled past, circled, picked up Angellotti at the end of the block.

"After you an' the doc left, I went up to the corner drug store and phoned the chief's house, but nobody answered," Angellotti confid-

ed. "The gang's in there, all right."

"I'm as nervous as an old woman," Flynn confessed. "I wish I had a drink."

Angellotti was a resourceful fellow. "Let's call on that Lanning woman, apologize for our rough work last night, an' maybe she'll slip us some o' that pre-war Bourbon again."

Flynn nodded, and they drove to Lanny's house. Lanny received them coldly. "Have you come to search my house again?" she demanded irritably.

No mule's face could possibly have been longer and sadder than P. Flynn's. "We didn't come to annoy you, Miss Lanning. The chief's give us the inside story. We just called to apologize for even suspectin' you."

"An officer," Angellotti explained, "has got to do a lot o' things he don't like to do in the discharge of his duty. The apology goes double, Miss Lanning."

"It's accepted," Then they shook hands. "How about a shot in the arm?" Lanny, the worldling, suggested, much mollified.

Angellotti shrugged expressively. "Well, seein' as how," P. Flynn murmured. So they had three drinks and spent a very pleasant evening with Lanny and she was loath to see them depart.

Now, Lanny was aware that Stephen had planned to visit his queer patients after dinner that night. So she telephoned—and Dan McNamara answered.

"How's everything, Dan?"

"I haven't seen the patients, but my chief of staff was up waiting for me, and reports everything jake."

"That's all I wanted to know. Thanks, Dan. Oh, by the way, Flynn and Angellotti called on me again, tonight."

"What's that?" The chief's voice was a roar. "What are those two eggs up to? I told them to lay off you."

"They're doing that, Dan. They just called to apologize. They spent the evening with me. They only left a moment ago."

"I know those two. It would never occur to them to apologize to anybody if they didn't have a reason. It's just as I suspected, Lanny. They're going to hang on to this case on the quiet and trail you around."

An anguished thought popped into Lanny's agile brain. "Oh, Dan, suppose they took a notion to trail Steve!"

"Hush! You don't have to paint me any picture, Lanny. When did these two busybodies call at your house?"

"At nine-fifteen."

"Wait a minute," Lanny waited a minute and then McNamara said: "Stephen left here just about that time, so I guess we're safe tonight. And tomorrow I'll cover that loop-hole. I'm an ass not to have thought of it before. Good night."

In the morning Dan McNamara sent for Flynn and informed him he was to depart that night for Los Angeles to bring back a prisoner. Flynn begged Angellotti to keep his eyes on the job. But that night McNamara found other work for Angellotti. By the time Flynn returned, Angellotti was gone, and the same night, without a moment's notice, McNamara shot him up to Seattle on a similar job.

Dan let himself into the house that night with his latchkey, turned on the hall light and whistled. "Hello, everybody," he shouted. Nobody answered, so he hurried down to Nance's room. The door was open. He switched on the light and found a disordered bed with nobody in it. He searched the house thoroughly, only to discover he was alone in it; finally, on the living room table he found a note:

"Dear Chief: We think you mean well and we thank you for what you have done, but the dicks are watching this house. They trailed the doctor last night, but a friend of ours trailed them. Forgive us if we just can't trust any cop. Anyhow, it would be embarrassing for you if your men found us here. Good-by and good luck."

McNamara sat down. He was suddenly weak. So he hadn't fooled Flynn and Angellotti after all. The smart devils! Well, they might suspect all they pleased, but unless they had seen his guests and recognized Nance they could never prove anything.

He realized now that his act in sending them out of the state would clinch their suspicions; they would be sure to have somebody in their confidence keep the house under constant surveillance until they got back. Evidently they had sent a bungler and the ex-soldier had spotted the fellow—he wondered if Nance and her loyal friends had made a clean getaway.

The front doorbell rang and he went to answer it. A thin, bent man stood in the entrance, and even in the dim light from the hall McNamara knew him for an ex-convict in his prison suit of civilian clothes.

"Chief McNamara?" he queried huskily.

"Yes, I'm the chief."

"I got out of San Quentin this morning. I had a message for you, but I didn't want to come to headquarters to deliver it. Benny the Beetle told me to tell you to rest easy."

"Thanks, friend. Come in and rest easy yourself. Let's get acquainted," McNamara invited hospitably. In the clearer light of the living room he saw his visitor was far from being a well man. "What is it, kid?" he demanded. "Hop—

or T. B.?"

"The old coughin' sickness, Chief. The prison directors shortened my term to let me out for treatment. As if I can get treatment anywhere," he added bitterly.

"Oh, yes, you can. I'm living alone here for the next thirty days, so I'll get a nurse in to take care of you, and you stay here."

The man looked at him suspiciously. "You mean it, Chief?"

"What did Benny tell you about me?" McNamara asked.

"He told me to trust you. He said you was one human being, even if you was a chief of police."

Dan changed the linen on Nance's bed, put the room in order, laid out a suit of pajamas and ordered his guest to bed.

"And now, me bold buckos," he reflected, "keep on trailing Doctor Burt to my house, if you feel like it."

He waited up until Stephen Burt arrived, and explained the situation to him. Stephen considered it a tremendous joke but commended his line of attack on Flynn and Angellotti.

"The man does need treatment very badly," he told the chief. "I'll send around a practical nurse early tomorrow morning to look after him, and I'll continue to call upon the poor devil nightly until further orders. We're both involved in a tricky game now and must play the hand through."

Doctor Burt was suddenly serious. "I do hope we haven't lost Nance, Dan. She's the most interesting psychological case I've ever seen."

"She ain't lost, but I'll bet a cookie she's well hid. But I'll locate her within twelve hours," Chief McNamara added, thinking of Ella Cates.

"I've run Nance's early history down since I saw her last, Doc," he announced suddenly. "I got busy the other day and luck was with me. She's an heiress, and her name is Penelope Gatlin. She got it on the nose by a baseball—a long fly into the bleachers. But I also discovered something else. It's a question whether she ain't just a natural nut. Her mother is. She led Gatlin a h—l of a life."

"No, I don't think it's congenital, Dan. There's something about that girl that's healthy—mentally and physically. Did you meet her mother?"

"No, but I'm going to run her down easy enough."

Stephen sighed. "Oh, poor Nance! I'm afraid she's beyond my skill, after all. A bad family history, Mac—very bad. There's a structural weakness in some families that never gets bred out, and I suspect poor Nance has an inheritance of mental instability from her mother."

"Well, with that busted nose, her inheritance and her hellcat mother, she certainly had a fine start on the road to the foolish farm, didn't she, Doc? Excuse me, there's the telephone."

Lanny was calling. "Dan," she quavered, "my house has been burglarized. They jimmied the back door, and for all I know the burglars are upstairs still. I'm watching the staircase—got my pistol covering it. Come over quick, Dan—please."

"Coming right away, Lanny." He hung up and faced Stephen. "Lanny has burglars. Into your car, boy, and we'll beat it over."

To be continued next week.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY Sunday School at 10 o'clock.

Services Sunday morning at 10.45.

"Doctrine of Atonement" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientists, on Sunday, April 21.

The Golden Text is: "Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation" (Hebrews 9:28).

Among the citations from the Bible is the following: "For if, when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his son, much more, being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life" (Romans 5:10).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus aided in reconciling man to God by giving man a truer sense of Love, the divine Principle of Jesus' teachings, and this truer sense of Love redeems man from the law of matter, sin, and death by the law of Spirit—the law of divine Love" (p. 19: 6-10).

Wednesday testimonial meeting at 7.30 p. m.

Rangeley reported a six inch fall of snow over the week end. The greater part of Maine was visited by rain.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

The members of The Ladies Club of the West Parish Congregational Society are planning a public supper. A delicious bill-of-fare is promised.

The above is a news item from the "Bethel Earache" of April 1885. Oh boy, and could those old gals cook!

Sure could, and so can we. Our reputations are at stake.

So, kind friends, come and see. The Ladies Club of the Congregational Church will give a public supper in the church dining room, May 15, 1935.

A VALUABLE GUIDE TO INTELLIGENT READING

While this is the age of specialization and unlimited material is being written by experts on myriads of interesting topics, who among us has the time to search through all of this literature and even select that which we consider the most worthwhile?

THE READER'S DIGEST solves this problem brilliantly—perfectly. This unique monthly is a service for busy people, carrying in each issue the most interesting articles which have appeared in the leading current periodicals—each article skillfully condensed without loss of the author's original style and thought.

After you have read your local newspaper for local news, The Reader's Digest is the ideal method of keeping in touch with the viewpoints of the foremost writers and thinkers of the day. The mixture of subjects keeps you mentally fit, opens up many channels for new thoughts and is an aid to the fine art of gracious living.

We most heartily recommend that you write The Reader's Digest Association, Pleasantville, N. Y., for a free sample copy.
